

DUN'S HOPEFUL TRADE REPORT

Corn Crop, It Is Officially Estimated, Will Exceed That Of The Banner Year 1902.

SHOWS BUSINESS GAIN IN ALL LINES

Bustle In The Wholesale Branch Reflects The Demand Of The General Public At The Counters Of Retail Merchants.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 12.—The weekly review of trade in the Chicago district, published by the R. G. Dun & Co. mercantile agency says:

"Official crop estimates exceeding those of the banner year 1902, together with weather conditions which have advanced corn growth, gave an excellent tone to commercial affairs and business generally was heavy, the prevailing tendency being toward further enlargement. The wholesale markets gained in activity. Interior buyers appeared in much larger numbers, and the demand acquired considerable strength in the leading lines of staple merchandise. Aggregate sales exceeded those of a year ago in dry goods, boots and shoes, clothing and food products. A feature is the sustained improvement in orders for woolen and cotton goods. Retail trade was fuller in reasonable needs and stocks were materially reduced. Distributive results indicate that consumption of commodities is expanding, and this forms an encouraging basis for current operations in fall and winter wares.

Traffic Movement Is Increased.

"Traffic movement, both by rail and lake, reached a greater tonnage and more pressure for additional cars to move crops is felt by western roads. The quantity of grain handled rose to 10,455,575 bushels, against 9,523,745 bushels last week and 8,343,317 bushels a year ago. Other farm and dairy products were liberally marketed. Wool arrivals are smaller, but hides, live stock and flour have gained, and iron ore was unloaded to an extent hitherto unknown here. Receipts of lumber, 42,127,005 feet, compare with 32,607,000 feet a year ago. The demand was held good for building lumber, and the hardwoods are in better request.

"Receipts of hides were 2,987,231 pounds, against 2,929,955 pounds last week and 2,293,183 pounds a year ago. Strong buying is seen in both hides and leather, with high prices ruling and the leather working trades received orders which will add to future output. Commitments in iron and steel represent a fair tonnage, although the demand has eased slightly in rails and furnace product. The capacity in this district, however, is fully employed, and there is hesitancy in undertaking orders for structural shapes involving delivery before 1905. Wire and hardware factories report a gain in forward business, and there is more steadiness in machinery, forge, and foundry work.

Breadstuffs in Widened Demand.

"Breadstuffs again were in widened demand and the markets reflected more activity in cash dealings. Flour production is slightly larger and the export trade came nearer to a working basis. Receipts of grain were 6,111,692 bushels, an increase of 29 per cent over the corresponding week of last year, and the shipments, 4,343,833 bushels, gained 22.5 per cent. The markets for provisions and live stock were more animated and higher, and receipts at the stockyards aggregated 259,220 head, against 221,750 head a year ago.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district were 34, against 24 last week and 25 a year ago."

The Czar is expected today as a commemorative event to promulgate the project for a National Assembly for Russia. It is understood that the project provides for elections every five years. DETAILS OF TEXAS MULATTO BURNING Capture Is Followed by Identification, Pouring on Oil, the Application of a Match and Death.

Sulphur Springs, Tex., Aug. 12.—Tom Williams, a mulatto, about 6 o'clock Friday morning made an attempt to assault a young white girl in a pasture near this town. Three hours later he was a blazing mass in the public square at Sulphur Springs. There was no excitement, and the lynching was participated in by several hundred people. In less than four hours after the assault the tragedy had ended, the town had returned to its accustomed vocations and the incident was over.

On a farm about two miles south-west of town Mary Childs lives with her parents. About 5 o'clock a. m. she was driving the cows home, when Williams attempted his assault. The girl made her way home and told what had happened. Officers and a posse started after the negro and he was soon caught about a mile and a half east of the town. He was taken to the scene of the attempted assault and fully identified by the intended victim. A mob quickly assembled and took the negro to the public square, where he was tied to a stake and completely saturated with oil. A match was applied to the feet and a blaze shot high into the air.

The mob stood by and watched the flames devour the negro. After the oil had burned itself out the body was cut down. More oil was poured on the corpse, and the blaze started afresh until the body was almost entirely incinerated. Then the mob dispersed and in half an hour no sign remained of the gruesome tragedy that had been enacted nor of the victim whose death had been compassed so quickly after his crime.

The relatives of the man were permitted to take what was left of the body. They scraped up the remains and took them away.

INDECOROUS TALES TOLD BY HIS WIFE

Captain Taggart Makes Another Charge in the Sensational Trial at Wooster, Ohio.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Wooster, O., Aug. 12.—Captain Taggart resumed the stand this morning. He told of a number of indecorous stories which he said his wife was in the habit of telling. His wife sat facing the witness with blazing eyes. In answer to questions Taggart said "My wife's relations with other ladies at Fort Leavenworth were apparently friendly. She was intimate, however, with only two. I saw my boys for the first time after my release from the hospital at San Francisco while enroute for the Philippines in the transport service. I met my wife and we agreed to take no action while my service at sea lasted. Mrs. Taggart bore me good-bye with a kiss." He ended his testimony at eleven o'clock. Attorney Smyser for Mrs. Taggart began the cross examination. Smyser sought to get an admission from Taggart that he was responsible for his wife's drinking. The court adjourned until Monday morning.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 12.—Brigadier General Minor, retired, who is mentioned in the Taggart trial, will not talk. He says he will tell his story on the witness stand. His wife's confidence in him is apparently not shaken.

WITTE REJECTS TERMS IN PART

Russian Naval And Military Experts Combat Correctness of Reimbursement Claim.

CONFERENCES ARE TO CONTINUE

Sato, Of The Japanese, Thinks Demands Are Moderate--- Russian Papers Attack Japan And Criticise The United States.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'HEAL.]

Portsmouth, Aug. 12.—The peace envoys met this morning at 9:35 and adjourned after an hour's session. The Russian answer to the Japanese demands was delivered, the Russians objecting to certain phases of the proposed terms. Sato announced after the session that the conference would continue, the negotiations being based upon those points to which Russia objects.

St. Petersburg Petulant.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—A hopeful view of the peace outlook continues here today. Optimistic telegrams from Witte have caused a belief that the envoys will agree on terms. The newspapers bitterly attack Japan and criticize the United States and England, calling them allies of Japan.

Why The Experts Tame.

Portsmouth, Aug. 12.—The mystery of the presence of the Russian military and naval experts at the peace conference has been explained. They are here to combat the correctness of Japan's claim for reimbursement for the cost of the war and reduce the demand for indemnity to a figure considered reasonable by the Russians. It is believed that negotiations will continue for some time. There are expected to be a number of interchanges of opinions before an agreement is finally reached.

Written in Two Texts.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 12.—Russia's reply to Japan's peace terms will reject the proposition of indemnity and cession of Sakhalin Island.

It is written in two texts, one in French, the other in English. Upon the crucial points, indemnity and cession of the island of Sakhalin, the reply is an absolute non possumus.

Other points are accepted as bases for discussion, while still others are accepted conditionally.

The reply is rather long because in enumerating the conditions upon which discussion is admitted and those upon which consideration is declined, reasons and arguments are given. The Japanese plenipotentiaries are expected to ask for an immediate adjournment to examine and prepare their reply.

Neither side wants to indulge in diplomatic sparring. The time for fencing is over and less than a week must decide whether a basis of peace is possible.

Japanese Keep Secrets.

The tactics of the Japanese are inscrutable. They have shown throughout the war this ability to guard their secrets, military, naval and diplomatic, and now not the remotest clue comes from behind their closed doors as to whether they are prepared to make substantial concessions. Silence and secrecy are their watchwords. But if the conditions as submitted constitute their last word, hope of peace may be regarded as having disappeared. If the feeling reflected in Russian circles is a true criterion.

And that no substantial concessions proposed as the basis of peace.

Old Fight For Sakhalin.

"About 200 years ago the island was explored by a Japanese, Juzo Konda, who occupied it in the name of Japan and called it Karafuto, the name bestowed upon it by the aboriginal race, who at that time inhabited the island of Hokkaido. Finally it was discovered by a Russian captain, who occupied it in the name of Russia. Japan protested and a long, desultory negotiation followed. But Japan then was weak. She had neither army nor navy nor internal organization. Indeed, the country was almost on the verge of revolution. Japan could not resist and the upshot was that Russia one day ended the controversy by announcing that she would take Sakhalin and give Japan the Chishima (Kuriles) islands—which Japan already owned.

"Japan has no desire to humiliate Russia more than is necessary and even now is seeking to avoid wounding Russia's susceptibilities, but public opinion in Japan is absolutely so firm upon the main issues that no Japanese statesman could possibly dare to withdraw the terms which have been proposed as the basis of peace.

before he would undertake the place, but in his acceptance stipulated that the examinations he would give would be no farces. He is a graduate of the university of the class of 1888 in the English course, and at once accepted a position in the high school at Elkhorn. After the completion of one year's service in that position he served for two years as teacher of English in the Madison high school. During this time he read law and attended lectures at the university law school. In 1891 he was appointed to the superintendency of the schools at Las Vegas, New Mexico, where he remained for two years, and then returned to take the principalship of the schools of Waupaca. After three years' service at this place he was elected supervising principal of the schools at Sparta, where he remained for six years. Three years ago Mr. Doty was appointed state inspector of high schools. During this time he has made 246 inspections of high schools and has been successful in this work.

WAIL HEARD IN THE LA FOLLETTE CAMP

Over Announcement of Election of Frank E. Doty as Secretary of State Civil Service Commission.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., August 12.—The announcement of the election of Frank E. Doty as the secretary of the state civil service commission, which job carries a salary of $2,500 a year, has caused a wail to go up from the faithful followers of the La Follette camp, many of whom either desired the salary for themselves or planned to easily pass the examinations which one of their factional friends would administer and which examination papers would be marked and graded by "good fellows." Not only is the disappointment keen on the part of those who desired this office or other jobs in the practical gift of the commission, but there are hearty expressions of disapproval from among the present holders of places, who must submit to examinations in order to retain their stipends. It is remarked that Doty never contributed a cent to the "halfbreed campaign fund" and that he has done little or nothing to carry caucuses, but has devoted himself exclusively to the work of inspecting high schools, for which work he was hired by Superintendent Cary. There can be no accusation brought against Mr. Doty that he is a politician, and to this extent the disappointment is based on truth. Mr. Doty was not an aggressive candidate for the civil service commission place and it is even understood that he made no application for it and had to be urged by Chairman S. E. Spaulding

PANORAMA FROM BALD MOUNTAIN

DR. WILLARD M. CHESNEY DEPICTS
MARVELLOUS SCENE

REVEALED BY FIELD GLASS

Foot hills, Plateaus, and Thirty Lakes
Are Visible—Jorner's Peak Higher Than Famous Pike's Peak.

Apex, Colo.—It will hardly pay you to try and locate Apex on any map you may have—you cannot find it. Time was when it was very much in evidence—a red-hot mining town with plenty of stores, saloons, dance halls and everything else that was deemed necessary to put it on the map. My historian could not inform me whether there had ever been a church in the place, but thought that at some time divine service might have been held at odd times in some of the halls or bar-rooms. As a matter of fact, though he said he was certain that they had never had a resident minister. Apex now consists of a single street running up the side of the mountain and the business places consist of a general store and post-office and one saloon. They have a number of mines that are running and that are said to pay, but most of them are worked out. I have mentioned Apex only because it is our nearest mailing point, a matter of only three miles, but a three miles over a mountain trail only, and that to use a mining phrase consists of numerous "dips, spurs and angles." We left Denver over the Colorado Southern on Thursday morning and went up the beautiful Bear Creek canyon as far as the Forks and then branched off to Central City, the terminus of the road. Central City is the county seat of Gilpin county and has but little to recommend it to the tourist. It is a mining town and has had some very productive mines, and in fact some of them are still in active operation and are good producers, much ore being shipped from Black Hawk, about one and a half miles below Central City and a great deal also being treated at the refining mills. The stage ride of seven miles from Central City to Apex was very interesting over a fairly good road, kept in repair by the county. We were not long in touring it all, though it was up and down hills and along the mountain side where one could look down far below and in Clear Creek hurrying along over stones and through stony green stretches. I want to use the old thread-bare word of "where a single false step meant death," but it won't do. It all seemed perfectly safe for the road was good, but a fall might and probably would be a serious matter. I have a camera with me, but neither camera or words can give you any conception of the magnificent views from the stage road when you strike the Black Hawk road on the way over from Central City to Apex. I am fearful lest I over-work that word "magnificent," but I am not familiar with any other word which can adequately describe the wonderful scenery of this mountain country. We left Apex about 1:30 and arrived at our objective point, a cabin on Bald Mt., at about half past three. Our cabin is at an elevation of 11,300 feet, and one is inclined to make as little exertion as possible. The cabin is built so that one sitting in the entry way is looking almost due north. Last evening just as the sun was about to go behind the hills, and while the foothills and plateaus far to the east and mostly were well-lighted, I took a field glass and by its aid brought cities and villages, lakes and valleys to view. Far away to the north was a large town—probably Longmont (nearly 75 miles) a conglomerate mass of buildings with the single exception of a large building which stood out somewhat indistinctly and which was thought to be the sugar beet factory at that place. Boulder and numerous small towns in the same direction were plainly visible. Today, taking with me the field glasses I made the climb to the top of "Old Baldy," as the mountain is familiarly called here, and although very laborious, it presents no difficulty and the view from the peak well repays one for the exertion. Looking south and a little west one can easily see Silver Plume and Georgetown and at one's left is Jorner's Peak only one mile distant—I refer now to the foot of the Peak for a recent government survey shows Jorner's Peak to be slightly higher than the more famous Pike's Peak. From the top of Bald Mt. the ground slopes somewhat gently to the foot of James Peak and a well-defined trail leads part way up to the summit which has plenty of snow. It is a favorite climb and I am going to try it before I return. Looking north and seemingly not more than one mile distant, but really three is the new Moffat Road, no doubt the greatest scenic road in America. Still farther to the north and about seven miles distant are the rugged and rugged snow-capped Arapahoe Peaks. They would seem to furnish all the exercise and excitement necessary for the ordinary mountain climber. Again calling into requisition the field glasses I am enabled to count over thirty lakes. I returned to the cabin getting there slightly in advance of a very heavy thunder shower which lasted for nearly two hours. When it commenced to clear off we had rainbows so near that it seemed almost possible to touch them. Shortly after the low hanging clouds began to roll from the north, coming up towards us from over the top of Mammoth Gulch only a half mile from us and we were soon enveloped in the clouds—great heavy billows above and below us, so dense that at times the range of vision would have a drift in the cloud and we could see far down the valley, which at times would be bathed in sunlight. At one time we were treated to a sight very unusual at a spot nearly a mile down the gulch where a gulch comes in from the north opening directly opposite a large hill. This was a white cloud, not very dense, but evidently carrying sufficient moisture to throw the prismatic colors in relief against the hill—not in a rainbow but just simply a mass of colors with absolutely no arrangement. But enough I could not tell you of this mountain scenery if I wrote constantly. I advise you to make your vacation trip next year to Denver and the mountains.

REFRESHMENTS FOR PARTY WERE STOLEN

Persons with Very Peculiar Idea of Humor Played Practical Joke on Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stevens.

Last Tuesday evening while Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stevens who reside on Racine street, were entertaining at a wedding anniversary party, the rear portion of their home was entered by some unknown and unwelcome guests who made way with a large portion of the refreshments which were in readiness on the kitchen table. When Mrs. Stevens went to the kitchen to bring in the dainties for her guests she was much surprised to find them missing. A telephone call was at once sent to the police and John Brown arrived on the scene but could get no trace of the guilty parties. Later in the evening one of the cakes was discovered in a clothes basket and it was decided that some one with a very peculiar sense of humor had tried to play a practical joke.

A New Store in Janesville.

The Marine Clothing company will open a branch store in Janesville having rented the vacant store room in the Jackson building and will open for business on or about Sept. 10th. The headquarters of this company is in Rockford and branch stores are operated in various sections of this and adjoining states. They sell clothing for men and women on the dollar per week plan. Buying in large quantities for their many stores and for cash they get the lowest possible prices and are therefore enabled to sell on time as low as most stores sell for cash. They manufacture some special line of goods and in this case the goods are direct from the manufacturer to the consumer. They will carry a large and varied stock of the latest goods on the market consisting of ready-made clothing for men and women, hats and caps, shoes and millinery. Practically all persons can have credit here. Their store has been established in Rockford for a number of years and it has a very large and varied stock and practically all are satisfied with their manner of doing business.

ROAD MUST PAY ITS PORTION FOR SEWER

City Attorney Burpee Secures Victory Over Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Company.

Appearing in the circuit court before Judge Dunwiddie City Attorney Burpee succeeded in having dissolved the injunction secured by the St. Paul Railroad company on the city of Janesville, restraining the city from delivering to contractors Manarhan and Lisquist the certificates for constructing sewers which fronted on property of the railroad company. The railroad, represented by A. A. Jackson of Janesville and G. H. Van Aalstine of Milwaukee secured the injunction on the ground that the corporation was not liable to special assessments as levied by a city and refused to pay the $529.52, the value of the certificates. The railroad company has amended its complaint and offered to pay $440.22. The balance of the amount will be fought for in another hearing.

CONCERT IN PARK ENJOYED BY MANY

Listeners Were Cool and Able to Appreciate the Musical Treat by the Band.

Hundreds of people gathered in the Court house park last evening, enjoying and appreciating the concert rendered by the Imperial band. The crowds were not compelled to walk or stand on the hard pavements and fresh air was not held back by tall buildings, as would have been the case had the program been given on the Corn Exchange. The rendition of the piece, "Where the Silver Colorado Winds Its Way," with the echo accompaniment, so pleased that applause compelled the band to repeat the selection.

Albert Long Died This Morning of Injuries Sustained While at Work in a Basement.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Brodhead, Wis., Aug. 12.—Albert Long, aged twenty-one years, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Long of this city, was the victim last night of an accident which cost him his life. He was assisting at the excavating work for the basement of a projected new building of the Davis cheese factory near the Union church south of here when a gust of wind blew down the canvas which had been spread over the workers to keep off the sunlight and a heavy timber used to hold it in place struck him on the head. He was taken to the home of his parents and died of his injuries this morning.

OSTEOPATHIC NOTES

That You May Know of Osteopathy and What it is Doing For Humanity.

(Edited by Dr. Hugh Ross Bell of Bell & Settle, Osteopaths, 405 Jackson Block.)

WHAT STATE GOVERNORS THINK OF OSTEOPATHY

Governor Benton McMillan of Tennessee: "It is one of the greatest discoveries of the times."

Governor Leslie M. Shaw of Iowa: "I am fully convinced that osteopathy is a rational system of healing."

Governor Edwin C. Smith of Vermont: "My experience with osteopathy has been very gratifying. It should be legalized by every state in the union."

Governor Josiah Groun of Vermont, on signing the bill for osteopathy: "Osteopathy has been tried by the leading men and women of the state, and they all testify to its merits. We will give it a chance."

Governor John P. Altgeld, of Illinois: "When prescriptions and drugs were as ineffectual as empty words, it came to the rescue of myself and Mrs. Altgeld and did that which other things had failed to do. Honor to those to whom honor is due."

Governor Hazen S. Pingree, of Michigan: "Osteopathy is a science entitled to all respect and confidence as a distinct advancement. I know it is doing a vast amount of good in relieving suffering and deformity."

Governor John R. Tanner, of Illinois: "The state board of medical examiners has been fighting the osteopaths long enough. There is no doubt in my mind that osteopathy will reach and cure many chronic troubles that medicine would have little or no effect upon."

Governor E. A. Lee of South Dakota: "Osteopathic bills have been in several other states, and from a careful investigation of the claims of the system, I believe are entitled to the protection of our laws."

Governor William P. Dillingham, of Vermont: "I have employed practitioners of that school to treat members of my family, and have been particularly pleased with the results. I firmly believe that the practice is based on scientific principles and is an advance in medical science."

Governor Robert L. Taylor, of Tennessee: "When a century later historians are sifting the events of this time for the epoch making discoveries of science and civilization, there will be few chapters more important, I think, than that devoted to the reformation in medicine, which will have come about through the acceptance and practice of Dr. Still's system, known as osteopathy."

Forty Years Ago.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, August 12, 1905.—Normal School Meeting.—The meeting at the Court House last evening was tolerably well attended, and quite a lively discussion was had upon the subject of locating the Normal school at this place. It was finally resolved to appoint a committee to confer with the Board of Normal School Regents in relation to the whole subject, and report at a future meeting to be called by the President.

The Weather.—It has not rained for the last three days, as remarkable as such an announcement may appear, and the farmers have been very busy gathering in their crops, which have been standing out in the wet altogether too long. We hope that upon examination that the wheat will be found to be less damaged by the long wet weather than the fears of the farmers have led them to anticipate. A few dry days now will be of inestimable value to the farmers in this section of the state.

Numbering Buildings and Residences.—A proposition will come before the Common Council meeting this evening, to number the dwelling house and business portion of this city, as has already been done in all the chief cities of the country. The representative of the firm of J. A. French & Co. of Elmira, New York, is now here, and has unusual facilities for doing such work with neatness and at reasonable figures. The business portion of the city would no doubt derive great benefit by such an arrangement.

Campanology.—Our readers will observe the card in our columns to-day, announcing the advent of the original Swiss Bell Ringers, on Wednesday evening next at Laplin's hall. The press elsewhere teems with commendatory notices of this troupe, and indicate that we are to have a most unusual treat in listening to their unique performance.

Oil at Edgerton.—A facetious friend informs us that he visited Edgerton yesterday and tried to find the oil well, but was told that the hole had been stolen and sold out in small pieces for post holes. We understand that the holes are to be replaced, put together again and the boring continued.

Trim Them Up.—Some of the shade trees in this city are suffering from sending out their branches too low. It often happens that the ladies parasols get perforated by the rugged limbs. The owners should trim them up.

There will be a German meeting in the hall adjoining the Court Rooms tomorrow at 10 a. m., by Rev. H. Ernst. A full attendance is requested.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

What is the work I have done today?
Have I left a mark upon the way,
A kindly word, or a cheery smile
That has lingered in some heart Awhile?
Straightened a path or a crooked
road,
Lightened the weight of a weary load,
Into the shadow of some one's night
Sent even a tiny ray of light?

This choice scrap of sentiment is going the rounds of the press, and serves as a pleasant reminder that life, at the best, means more than selfishness.

The routine of daily life is noted for monotony, and largely devoted to serving individual interests.

The horizon is not large, and the sky line of the average life is within easy range of vision.

The great mass of people, who make up the population of any large city, seldom pass beyond the city limits, and the struggle for existence so absorbs them, that knowledge of the outside world is extremely limited.

On one of the north bound trains the other day was a little group of city waifs, on their way to farm homes in Grant county for a two week's outing.

The young woman in attendance said it was the first time they had ever enjoyed a ride on a railroad train, and their exclamations of wonder and delight when they caught the first glimpses of the country, were pathetic.

This little outing like many others of the same class, was made possible by a spirit of philanthropy on the part of a charitable organization in the city, encouraged by the same spirit in the hearts of the farmers, one hundred and fifty miles away, and made effective by a soulless railroad corporation, who carried the little folks back and forth without expense.

Three agencies, inspired by the same Christian spirit, combined in the work of a day, and as a result twenty children were permitted to enter an enchanted land, and enjoy for the first time, God's free sunshine in the country.

This kind of work may not be computed by figures, for it touches life at the fountain, and its gracious influences glide on through the years.

To the large hearted people who devote the best energies of life to this most practical Christian work, it means the highest type of reward, not in the dim future, but in the work of today.

To the homes in the country, thrown open to receive the little guests, it means a revelation, and as the pale faces become rosy in the sunshine and the little cheeks fill out in the enjoyment of a wholesome and beautiful diet, the good housewife with her large motherly heart will say: "God bless the little chicks, how I wish they could live on the farm always."

To the railroad company, donating the service, it may not mean very much for the impression generally prevails that railroads ought to do a lot of things graciously without expecting a thank you, and yet there are many people who appreciate this sort of liberality.

But what does it mean to the child? Who can tell? It opens up to his vision a new world. The old fashioned farm house with its garden and fruit, the barn and the stock, the trees and the fields of waving grain seem so immense, that the little tenant in the crowded street which he calls home is a prison from which he longs to escape.

He will carry back to the city a fund of knowledge, which may change the current of a life, and imagination will reproduce the picture until the desire possesses him to get out of the slums and adopt the free and wholesome life beyond the din and noise of the city and free from its contaminating influences.

If it were possible, some starlight evening to travel from Wisconsin to Southern Florida, it would be noticed that the evening star, held its same relative position the entire length of the journey.

The vast canopy called the sky, is so far away that a thousand miles on the earth's surface is but a fraction, and so the moon and stars shine on blessing humanity at every point. But the realm in which we live and work out our destiny is a smaller realm, and the horizon which shuts us in is prescribed and limited.

The fast moving train and the ocean liner may take the traveler beyond these environments for a brief period, but the most of us are not travelers even, and we live out allotted time with the same monotonous sunrise and sunset in view.

The fact is sometimes overlooked that the small canopy which shuts us in, also encloses our neighbor, and whether he will or no, influences for which we are responsible are constantly being exercised for either good or evil.

Communities are made up of average people. The statesman, the philanthropist, the great captains of industry and commerce, and the men who possess the ability to acquire national fame, are the exception and not the rule, and yet the old Bible saying is as true today as when first recorded, that "no man liveth to himself."

There is a disposition on the part of some people to ignore this great truth, but the fact remains, the town or neighborhood where our lots are cast are either better or worse on account of our presence.

The man who shuts himself in like a clam and lives for himself alone, may imagine that he is living a harmless existence, but he isn't. The boy across the street has an eye on him, and takes him for a model, so the tribe of clams multiplies.

The people who get the most out of life are the people whose constant thought is for others, not to the extent of giving away everything in sight, but to the extent of a thoughtful solicitude.

The best gifts are not represented by wealth or money, and the most helpful people in the community are not always endowed with riches.

Every life touches every other life with which it comes in contact just as the spider's web touches the threads which form the fabric.

These points of contact form the web and roof of society, the church, and all that pertains to the world about us.

The web is at its best when the cheerful "good morning," the "pleasant smile," and the "helping hand" give a word of encouragement to the brother worker.

This is the store house of humanity's choicest wealth, free to every applicant. Draw on it generously and every community may be made a paradise.

In the death of Willard Merrill, the state has lost one of her best citizens. Mr. Merrill lived in Janesville long enough to establish a reputation for honesty and ability, and these characteristics marked his life and work in Milwaukee. His many graces of mind and heart won for him a host of friends. He was a general Christian gentleman of the old school type, and his death will be sincerely mourned.

What is the Governor talking about these days, Hamlet, or the menace of the machine? The "Venal press" seems to have slipped a cog. The only advertising he gets is when he talks about hanging "Shrivenshaft Fish," or predicting the hot time Rockefeller will have in the future.

The press of the country generally denounces the methods pursued by Mr. Plister's political enemies, and the Governor as well as his supporters will discover that there is a limit to endurance. Reputation is a sacred thing, and the man who attempts to destroy it is open to the most scathing criticism.

It is gratifying to the country to know that the plenipotentiaries, now in session, all smoke cigarettes. It is to be hoped that the soothing influence will induce the white winged dove of peace to hover near.

PRESS COMMENT.

Winneconne Local: When it comes to the anti-pass laws and similar legislative reformatory, there seems to be an extended belief that the reformers reformed things a little too strong.

Evening Wisconsin: It was probably not so much the trick that put it there, as the flavor of the tipple that caused the overcoming of the victims of the applejack ice cream that wrought consternation at a New Jersey church festival.

Exchange: With only twenty-one days of existence still ahead, the straw hat of 1905, is having an opportunity to show that it is "the thing" to wear. Earlier in the summer the "sou wester" almost had the straw knocked out in the wet.

Medford Star-News: It is well to stop and reflect while watching the avalanche of exposure and criticism of public and official corruption, that there are hosts of faithful, honest public and official servants who are not being talked of.

Wausau Record: Now La Follette is predicting a new national party. Let's see. Who can remember the names of all the gentlemen who in the last quarter century have gathered a state following and predicted a new party?

Oshkosh Northwestern: In order to win the democrats of Kansas, Gov. Folk of Missouri has just given them an exhibition of taking a big drink of whiskey without a chaser. Jerome, La Follette, Bryan and the rest of the presidential aspirants had better take notice.

Green Bay Gazette: Uncle Ike Stephenson is said to be perfectly satisfied with the result of the past three state campaigns. They ended to his satisfaction and he is happy. He evidently believes the final chap ter in his political life has still to be written. He should be interviewed again in November.

Whitewater Register: "There are tricks in all trades," and especially in that of the public speaker. There is nothing so dear to his heart as the howls of the multitude; and how to make the multitude howl is an art which he studies more assiduously by far than that of telling them valuable truths.

Two Rivers Chronicle: Bryan is all right. He believes that the time has not yet come for state ownership of the railroads and that state control is all that can be asked at present. We are with Bryan again, thank you. We feared he had tried to act out the next century ahead of us. Democracy is of today. State ownership is something the future must wrestle with.

Menasha Record: Can anyone tell us why slot machines still flourish here while they are being suppressed all over the state? We should really like to know! Do we want our boys to go to the Devil, or will we pull off our coats and try and make good citizens of them? This is a case where all answer at once please.

Pond du Lac Commonwealth: The disposition of the government to take a hand in the telegraph operators' strike along the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines, gives new interest to that event. The discovery that government, state, interstate and foreign messages had been interrupted, has caused some concern and is responsible for the turn of affairs, which is said to be welcomed by the strikers.

La Crosse Chronicle: Governor La Follette might as well have said: "The people be damned." Not once but many times Governor La Follette has been asked by representatives of the press questions concerning his plans in regard to the senatorship. Some honest lumberjack in one of La Follette's audiences should take the doughy little governor by the scruff of the neck and make him walk "turkey" until he tells. Still, it should be remembered that La Follette draws $5,000 as governor and makes $5,000 on the side as shouter at the camp meetings. Nothing should interfere with business.

Milwaukee News: Russian newspapers refer to the negotiations now under way between the Japanese and Russian peace plenipotentiaries as "the Portsmouth comedy." It is deemed a comedy in that the Russian plenipotentiaries are expected to reject the terms that Japan will demand. The negotiations are viewed merely as a diversion to the price of peace the Japanese wish to pay.

It is possible the negotiations at Portsmouth may prove fruitless. It may be Russia's purpose to concede nothing to the victor and to insist that the defeated shall be permitted to dictate the terms of peace. But if such is the purpose of the Russian government, the affair at Portsmouth will not be comedy though Russia may find the sequel in a distressing tragedy.

Eau Claire Leader: There are A. P. A.'s and A. P. A.'s. Some belong to the American Philatelic association now holding an annual session in Minneapolis. They are simply stamp collectors, and in the ranks are all kinds of people. Some single stamps are worth a fortune to those who desire them. America is the home of many large collectors: President Deans, who is a New Jersey millionaire, holds his to be worth about $60,000, his collection of Confederate local stamps issued before the Confederation government took charge of the postage service being valued at $20,000 alone. George H. Worthington's stamps are valued at $150,000, and one secretary devotes his entire time to his care. This sounds like big money, but when $7,250 is paid for a single stamp, as the Prince of Wales did for a specimen of the first issue of Maundins, it does not take long for a collection to become costly.

Kindness and Cows.

Milwaukee Journal: Think of it, if you work at the dairy farm of Mrs. Addie F. Howie you must say "good morning" to her cows. Eleven years ago Mrs. Howie was a Milwaukee society woman. Now she is the acknowledged authority on Jersey cattle breeding in this country. More than that, she is on the staff of the Wisconsin Agricultural college as a lecturer and students of dairy work and stock breeding come from all over the country to attend her lectures. Eleven years ago she was afraid to look at a cow, as she puts it. What new thing has this successful woman contributed to the science of cattle breeding? Chiefly this: She employs kindness. Now you would scarcely suppose that the yield of a cow's milk could be doubled by kindness? Mrs. Howie has proved that to be true. She says every stroke of petting, every word of love and every bit of appreciation and attention bestowed on a cow will come back to you in dollars and cents. "Put in affection with your scientific feeding and I promise it will repay you." For instance: Mrs. Howie reared and caressed twenty-two pounds and five ounces of butter out of Sadie Le-Pet, one of her favorites, in seven days. She sells calves for $300 apiece and they are bespoken before they are born. And her cows take first prizes wherever they are shown. Of course you must really love your cow if you want to double her yield of milk by kindness. Mrs. Howie is in love with her pretty creatures. Isn't the woman's theory fine? And it has its uses. You may lecture a brutal owner of a cow about being kind to all of God's creatures and it will never get under his skin. But show him that he is cheating himself out of dollars—that's another story. And by analogy? It is pays to be kind to a cow will it not pay to be kind to a horse or a dog—or even a human being?

Taft's Alleged Real Mission.

Deloitte Evening News: According to James A. Leroy, a former Detroit newspaper man who was private secretary to a member of the second Philippine commission and is now returning to the islands in company with Secretary Taft and party, the present visit is not at all the general junket which has been supposed, but is "fraught with great possibilities of administrative changes." Just why his purposes and prospects in this regard should not have been previously and officially announced is not exactly understood, but from further observation from the same authority—relative to the necessity for correcting abuses and readjusting issues now agitating the island population—we assume that administrative reluctance to admit that anything in the island needs special attention was responsible for the lack of a formal statement of specific motive for the journey. Mr. Leroy informs us that the archipelago is filled with protest, supported with practical universality by the native and Spanish press, against the revival of "abuses" and tyrannies by the native constabulary which were a fruitful source of revolt under the civil guard of the Spanish regime, and which contributed mightily to the causes of revolt against the former government. Division in the "federal party," the political organization supporting American regime, is also mentioned as a cause of anxiety. A new internal revenue of law for the islands; abatement of discontent due to native convictions that the civil service is not fairly opened to Filipinos; the settlement of title to the Dominican estates, and the adjustment of differences due to rival claims of Catholics and Aglipayans to various church properties, are recalled as other matters calling for governmental attention, and requiring the special care and thought of the head of the department, who, it seems is to act as a sort of commissioner paramount and adjutant-in-chief. This is by no means a conclusive statement of the purposes and aims of a unique expedition; but it is an infinite improvement on absolute lack of popular information on the subject which preceded it.

Conscience vs. H. A. Cooper.

Milwaukee Free Press: An occasional rumble of far-off politics is heard about the state. The Janesville Gazette of a recent date suggests the probability of opposition to the nomination of Representative H. A. Cooper of Racine who has been elected seven times to office. If Cooper should be turned down there would have to be somebody to put up in his place, and the Gazette sees in Mr. M. G. Jeffris of its own town the man for the honor. Mr. Cooper is to be defeated, if the trick can be turned, because he is supposed to have gone out of his way to support the Republican state ticket last fall when about all of the "leaders" of his district were hurrahing for George W. Peck. Naturally enough there is some sentiment favorable to Jeffris, the man who opened the Peck campaign with the amazing speech which he gave at the Peabody theater. The Gazette goes farther back than last year for reasons why Mr. Cooper should be shelved. Cooper was nominated over Caswell away back in '06—eighties—because the Rock county delegation gave him its support. He was nominated in 1902 when he would not have been but for the friendliness of the Rock county "conservatives." The Gazette thinks likely that Mr. Cooper has forgotten these benefits; why it thinks so is not stated, but it is doubtless because he "went out of his way" to support the Republican state ticket last fall. Cham Ingersoll has been postmaster in Beloit for years and years. Cooper had him appointed. Cham saved Cooper his nomination last year by "pleading with the conservative element." Besides being saved by Ingersoll, it is declared that had Jeffris "said the word" Cooper would have been defeated last fall. "The word" which Jeffris would have had to say being that he would take to be a difficult matter to tell just how the primary election law is going to work a year from next September. That is to say, nobody can tell with certainty—not with any such degree of certainty as people used to be able to tell how the delegates would line up—how the republican people of the First district will act when they take their consciences into the election booth with them, and prepare to mark their ballots.

The Modern Author.

"Ah," said the modern author, "my new book is enjoying wide popularity. I just heard a woman who weighs 200 pounds declare that she liked it. And that reminds me: I must make haste to forward this anecdote to my publishers. It will make an excellent literary note."

DRAG BONES FROM THE SEA

Remnants of Antediluvian Animals

Caught by Fishermen of Dogger Bank.

In the days when Great Britain and Ireland were one—geologically, not politically—and were part of the continuous of Europe, when the Irish sea, the Bristol channel, the English channel, and even the North sea were mere fertile valleys, various prehistoric beasts had a vast field on which to roam.

Edward Martin, in an article in Knowledge, describes how these lands became submerged, and how, when the great North sea plain sank beneath the waves, the Dogger bank, as it may be called, was the last to go.

Here the wild animals would naturally congregate as they were driven little by little from their old haunts by the ever-advancing sea, and here they were all finally entombed when their last resting place disappeared.

And now it is a common thing for the trawlers on the famous fishing ground, which is all that remains of the island, to catch among the fish a bone or two which originally formed part of an antediluvian animal.

Indeed, the skeletons are said to be so numerous on the Dogger bank that scarcely a trawl is brought up which does not contain a bone or a tooth of one of the ancient inhabitants of the submerged island.

SEEKING HEIRS OF
ONE WILLIAM PATONCounty Clerk Lee Receives Letter From British Vice Consul in Chicago.

County Clerk Lee this morning received a letter from Thomas Erskine, British vice-consul at Chicago, seeking the whereabouts of one William Paton, heirs to whom has been left an amount of money. The letter is as follows:

"British Consulate, Chicago.
"Sir: A sum of money has been left by James Rankin of Lanarkshire, Scotland, to one William Paton, a farmer in Wisconsin, and his descendants."

"William Paton died some years ago. I am told, and left five of a family."

"I shall be obliged if you can inform me if there are any of this name now in your county so that I can communicate with them and see if they can give their relationship."

"THOMAS ERSKINE,
"British Vice-consul."

No trace of the family could be found today. The name of Paton does not appear in the directory of Rock county either in the issue of 1905 or 1900-1901. The nearest to the name is that of Louis F. Patton, who was located at Fulton in 1900-01 as a blacksmith.

LOVE NOTES IN BALLOONS.

Mr. Baker's Aerial Plan to Find a Girl to Marry Him.

St. Charles, a pie baker in Kansas City, Mo., has for five years been seeking a wife. Each year on the anniversary of his birth he has sent up a paper balloon in which he previously placed a letter stating his age and that he had a good trade and wanted a wife, says the Kansas City Star. He sent up his last balloon a few days ago. It fell into the hands of a young woman, who sent it to the Star office with the following letter:

"While sitting in my front yard tonight enjoying the cool evening I happened to look over in northwest direction and noticed a big balloon come over our way. It hadn't come very far before it began to burn, and finally it fell in my back yard. On examination I found the inclosed letter. There isn't any one in this neighborhood that wants to be married that I know of and so will turn it over to you. Maybe you can give the gentleman some assistance."

W. F. W.,
388 Holmes street.
The letter taken from the balloon was written on the business envelope of a pie company and was addressed "To the First Maiden Who Finds or Reaches This Balloon." It read as follows:

"Kansas City, Mo., July 22.
To some maiden whose good fortune fate sends this balloon. I am a young man thirty-two years old, fairly good looking and have a good trade (baker). Am looking for a wife; would be pleased to correspond with the finder if a young lady who wishes to marry. If not, possibly she could recommend some one who is willing. I am sending out a balloon on each birthday since of age."

J. SCHROEDER,
218 Goodrich place.

"Yes, I want a wife," said Schroeder the other afternoon. "There is no hump about it. I have sent out a letter every year now for four or five years. I have never had any response that looked good; but I'm not at all discouraged. I propose sending up one every year until I get a wife. I don't know just how to get one any other way."

HAVE ROCK CO. NAGS
TYPHOID-INFLUENZA?

Madison Report of Epidemic Here Is News to the Janesville Veterinary Surgeons.

There comes a report out of Madison that an epidemic of typhoid influenza is raging among the horses in Rock county and that the skill of veterinarians has thus far been unable to check the ravages of the disease. Inquiries at the offices of Drs. Roberts and Little and Dr. Perschbacher fail to reveal the existence of any such alarming state of affairs. Some tonsillitis is reported but nothing is known of the twelve horses that are supposed to have rolled over and died of the malady. This affection is in most cases fatal to horses and is contagious. It is essentially a germ epidemic which is contracted by either drinking impure water or breathing air which has rested over decaying vegetation. The disease is marked by coughing, sneezing, weak heart and refusal to eat. It is reported, says the Madison authority, that more than a dozen horses have died in Rock county during the last two weeks after suffering from the disease. When the horses were first afflicted some weeks ago veterinarians generally pronounced the disease cholera, but later developments convinced them that the disease was nothing but typhoid influenza and steps were taken to control it.

Society..

Those who make a serious business of card-playing at the innumerable little parties in Janesville, that is to say, enter into the game with zest and the spirit of conquest, have been greatly annoyed and chagrined of late by the inauguration of a general scale of what is known as the lucky-number system of prize awards. One may easily imagine that it is trying, after all competitors have been vanquished and a few life friendships shattered, perhaps, to find that the beautiful lace handkerchief or hand-painted clothes-pin is going to be presented to the person whose score approximates more nearly the abstract number the hostess dreamed about on the previous evening. That is no premium on skill, certainly. But there is artfulness behind it. When asked what possible reason could be advanced for thus allowing, as most generally happens, the poor to inherit the fancy china, one of those ladies said in so many words that those who entertained in Janesville had been fairly driven to adopt some expedient to checkmate a certain few who are suspected of juggling their scores with convenient mistakes in addition. Is it possible? That's what one hears. And some of the accused are among the finest, best-liked people of the city—ladies who would not do anything dishonest or dishonorable for the world.

Almost Forgotten.

The two strangers, says Brooklyn Life, who had accidentally met in the hotel lobby, were discussing friends. "No," said the tall, thin man very seriously. "I'm looking for the friend who is a friend in need." The fat man rose hastily and consulted his watch. "By George!" he exclaimed, "you'll have to excuse me; I almost forgot that engagement."

Flowers for Sickrooms.

Many argue that flowers should be kept away from sickrooms, lest they exhaust the air, etc. That is true with certain flowers, such as the lilies and lilac, but a few roses, mignonette or violets will prove to be most refreshing and reviving to weary eyes and depressing spirits, which is the real ministry of flowers.

MET WITH SERIOUS INJURY TO HER HIP

Mrs. Olivia P. White Sustained Serious Injury at Her Home This Morning.

Mrs. Olivia P. White, an elderly lady who resides at 229 South Main street, met with a serious accident to her hip this morning while walking about her bed room. In some unknown manner she fell to the floor badly injuring the member. Dr. Buckmaster was called to dress the injury and made the patient as comfortable as possible. The ambulance was called this afternoon and the unfortunate woman was taken to the Palmer Memorial hospital, where she will receive the best of care. On account of her advanced years the injury was all the more severe and it will undoubtedly be many weeks before she will be able to be about again.

A Growing Industry.
Garvin & Murphy, the bustling cigar manufacturers, report a lively business. They say that they sold 10,000 more cigars in July than in June. This firm has only been in business for about one year but they already employ twelve hands and their cigars find ready sale not only in Janesville but in outside towns and cities as well. Practically all retailers of cigars in this city handle their goods—the Garmur for ten and the Little Garmur for five cents, and most of them have testified to their popularity. They sell well because they are good cigars and are the best possible value for the money charged for them. The dealer likes them because they are good repeaters. They give a satisfying smoke. The blend of tobacco is most fortunate and the smoker is calling for them more and more and one reason is because they are home and union made.

"The commission must be intercepted at all costs. It will be your task to frustrate the intentions of the king and his Scottish nobles. But the task is more complicated than yet appears. It would be an easy matter to run this messenger through the body and there an end. I want what he carries, but I do not wish to harm the carrier. These Scots are a clanish, troublesome, determined race. If you prick one with a sword's point the whole nation howls. This, then, must be done quietly, so that we bring no scorn about our ears. William Armstrong is the messenger's name, and he has powerful supporters in his own country. He was stopped as soon as he crossed the border yesterday and brought here. He pretends to be an innocent trader in cattle and will likely keep up that pretense. I have appeared to believe all he says, and he leaves this house tomorrow morning with a pass from my hand, giving him permission to travel as far south as Manchester, which was all he asked. I would willingly have given him safe conduct to Oxford, but he was too crafty to accept such a thing. He thinks he can make his way south from Manchester. As a matter of fact, he cannot, but I wish to make the way easy for him.

"Of course I could give a general order that he was not to be molested, but there are reasons against this, as we have doubtless spies in our own ranks, and a general order would excite suspicion and would probably prove useless because this man, south of his permitted territory, will endeavor to go surreptitiously to Oxford and by unrequited routes. It will be your duty to become acquainted with Armstrong, and win his confidence. You will accompany him to Oxford and return with him. You will be protected by a pass so broad that it will cover any disguise either of you may care to use.

"What excuse will you give to Armstrong for your desire to visit Oxford?"

"My friend, the son of Lord Rudby, is there. Although we are on opposite sides, he has none of the bitterness against me shown by his father. I will say I wish to confer with him."

"That will serve. Now this pass is for two, and you can offer to Armstrong safe conduct under your guidance, giving what plea you choose for the absence of the man who was to accompany you and who, it may be, was supposed to have procured this pass from me."

Cromwell folded the pass and handed it to young Wentworth. "Go. This paper is your safeguard. I shall give the order that you are to be well mounted and provided with money. Send Captain Bent to me as you pass out."

Once more alone, Cromwell wrote the pass for Armstrong, giving him permission to travel between Carlisle and Manchester. When he had finished writing, Captain Bent was standing beside the table, and to him he delivered the paper.

"You will give that to your late prisoner," he said. "He is to depart tomorrow morning, not before 5 o'clock, and is to travel unimpeded. You have accomplished your duties well, captain, and your services shall not be forgotten."

The silent but gratified captain left the room with straighter shoulders than had marked his previous exit. His chief looked up at the dark gallery and called out, "Come down and report yourself to the officer of the night."

For nearly ten minutes Cromwell sat at the table in silence, save for the busy scratching of his pen. Then he rose wearily, with a deep sigh, his marked face seemingly years older than when he had entered the room. Once outside, he gave Colonel Perlock sume. It is such a pass as I have never issued before and am not like to issue again, so I need not warn you to guard it carefully and use it only when necessary. It reads thus:

"I TRUST YOU HAVE MET WITH NO HARSH TREATMENT."

Here the speaker took up a sheet of paper on which he had been writing and, holding it so that the light from the candles fell upon it, read aloud:

"Pass the bearer and one other, without question or interference, from Carlisle to Oxford and return."

"The journey south will give you the opportunity to become acquainted with your man. On the northward march you must become possessed of what he carries, and when you bring it to me you receive in its stead pardon and promotion. If you do not succeed before you reach Carlisle, then I must trust him, possibly kill him as a spy. Will you undertake it?"

"Tis an ungracious office you would bestow upon me, sir. I had rather meet him in fair fight and slay him or have him slay me, as God willed."

"There speaks youth!" cried Cromwell impatiently. "This man is a treacherous, lying spy, whose life by all the rules of war is already forfeit. I propose to discount him with his own weapons. Nay, more, I willingly save him from the destruction he merits. You are set to do him the greatest service one man can offer another. If you fail, he dies; if you succeed, he has probably a long life before him."

"Sir, you are in the right, and your argument is incontestable. I accept your command willingly."

A gleam of pleasure lit the rugged face of the general, for he was that tired to believe his prowess in controversy was no less potent than his genius in war. His voice softened perceptibly as he continued:

"You save your country and at the same time save your country's enemy.

the papers he had written out said: "The finding of the court martial is approved, but the sentence is suspended. It is possible that Wentworth may render such service to the state as will annul the sentence against him. You will give him every assistance he requires of you and the amount of money set down in this order. Bring out my horse."

When the animal was brought to the lawn the general mounted with some difficulty, more like an old man than a leader of cavalry. The two silent horsemen behind him, he disappeared once more into the night, as he had come.

CHAPTER XIV.

NINE o'clock of a summer's morning in rural England is an hour of delight if the weather be fine. The birds sing whether there be war or peace in the land; the trees and hedges and the flowers make a path to fairyland of the narrow lanes, but the man who trusts to these winding thoroughfares, unless he know the country well, is like to find himself in an enchanted maze, and Armstrong, stopping his horse at an intersection, standing in his stirrups the better to view the landscape, wrinkled his brow in perplexity.

The sound of galloping hoofs beats to the rear caused him to sink into his saddle once more and wait patiently until he was overtaken. As his outlook had shown him the woods surrounding the mansion he had left an hour before in an entirely unexpected direction and at a distance not at all proportionate to the time he had spent on horseback, the thought occurred to him that his late detainers had changed their minds regarding his liberation and were pursuing him, but he was fortified by the knowledge that he possessed a permit written by Cromwell's own hand which no one in that part of England would dare disregard. He turned to his horse across the lane, completely barring the way, and with knuckles resting on his hip awaited whatever might ensue.

The hasty rider came round a corner, curbing his animal down to a walk on seeing the path blocked. The two horses neighed a greeting to each other. Armstrong was pleased to note that the stranger was a youth with a face as frank and beaming as the day, a face to which his friendly heart went out at once with sympathy, for it seemed glorified by the morning light, as if he were a lover sure of a warm greeting from his lass, which was indeed the hope that animated the boy.

Arriving as near the impending horseman as seemed to think safe, he came to a stand and with a salutation of the hand made inquiry:

"Do you stop me, sir?"

This question carried neither challenge nor imputation, for the times being troubled, no man could be certain that he met a friend on the highway until some declaration was forthcoming.

"Only so far as to beg of you some solution of the enigma of these roads. I am desirous of traveling southward and seek a main highway, which I am grievously puzzled to find."

The other laughed cheerily. "You could not have enquired on a better guide, for I was brought up some miles from this spot, although at the moment I am myself on a southern journey. We turn here to the right, but we have far to go before we reach the highway."

"The more lucky am I, then, that you have overtaken me. 'Twould need a wizard to unravel this tangled skein of green passages."

"Indeed," cried the youth, with a lightsome laugh, "I've often lost myself in their entanglements, and what is more lasting, I lost my heart as well."

"There is one thing you have not lost, and that is time. You are just young enough for such nonsense as the latter losing. I am older than you and have lost my way before now, as you may well bear witness, but I have kept my head clear and my heart whole."

"Tis nothing to boast," said the boy, with an air of experience. "It simply means that you have not yet met the right woman. When you meet her, you will be in as great a daze as that in which I found you at the crossroads. I hope to get a glimpse of my fair one before I ride further toward Oxford."

"Toward Oxford?" cried Armstrong, instinctively reining up his horse in his surprise. "Are you, then, making for Oxford?"

"Yes. I have been expecting a friend to come with me, but he is delayed. I suspect, at Carlisle, so I must get on as best I can without him."

"I travel to Manchester," said Armstrong, more noncommittal than the other appeared to be.

"Then I shall be happy to bear you company if it so pleases you until we come to the parting of our ways—that is, if you are not in haste and can wait until I have a word with my lass, in whose direction we are now tending. She is the most winsome little lady in all the countryside, the only daughter of Lord Rudby, who is—"

"Lord Rudby," echoed Armstrong. "You fly high, my young sir."

"Why should I not? Although she is the sweetest angel that ever visited this glad earth, she makes no descent when she joins her hand to mine. I am Thomas Wentworth, eldest son to the late Earl of Stafford."

They had been traveling knee to knee in the narrow way, but Armstrong pulled up and looked at his companion in amazement.

"Do you mean the minister to the king of England?"

"Yes. There was no other."

"Then you are perhaps about to visit Charles at Oxford?"

"Ah, I have already told you more than was wise on so short an acquaintance," said Wentworth, trying another tack. "You yourself gave me a lesson in reticence a moment since, and you have not been so garrulous concerning yourself as I. I do not even know your name."

"Sir, I am William Armstrong, and Scotland is my country. As two swords are better than one, I shall be most glad to travel in your company. I may say, however, that I hold a pass from Cromwell himself, so if you are a king's man you may not wish to be my companion."

"I am myself abroad through Cromwell's permission," answered Wentworth jauntily. "and I'll venture my pass is broader as well as longer than yours. 'Tis sometimes well to have a friend in the enemy's camp, and my friend pretends he can get anything from Old Nell. Read it, if you think I'm boasting."

Wentworth handed the document to the Scot, who read and returned it. "Mine is but a limited permit compared with this. Where do you expect to encounter your comrade?"

"I fear there is little chance of seeing him until I reach Oxford, if indeed I find him there. I suspect he is detained at Carlisle. However, I travel on my own business and he on his, so it makes little difference to me save the lack of companionship."

"You go to Oxford alone then?"

"Part of the way with you, I hope. Yes, I'm tired of waiting and so set out alone this morning, deviating from the main road and taking these lanes, the better to approach Rudby Hall without undue publicity."

As Mrs. Hans Olset and children were going to the creamery last Monday morning, the horse became frightened by an automobile turning off short and upsetting the buggy and throwing the occupants out. None were seriously hurt but were bruised up considerably.

On last Thursday evening a party of thirty-five young people gathered at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Taylor near Orfordville. The gathering was in honor of the betrothal of their accomplished daughter Elsie Luella to the Rev. Charles Wesley Boag, who is a recent graduate of the Theological department of Northwestern university and who is now the very able pastor of the M. E. church at Orfordville. At the same time an announcement was made of the betrothal of their nephew Mr. Wallace A. Lassell to Miss Flora Belle Rider. Both of these young people are well known in Orfordville and too much could not be said of the esteem held for them. The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor was elaborately decorated with pink and white hearts and the effort was one of great beauty and splendor. "Conversation" cards were distributed and amidst the valuations, swell of music given by Miss Cora Smiley, two minutes' "conversation" was held on "appropriate" subjects. After this came the dinner which was one of four dainty, choice and well-prepared courses. After dinner speeches were given in memory of the young people. The very able and competent toast-mistress, Miss Alice Clithero of Alnville, did justice to herself and the occasion in a most pleasing and interesting way. Mr. H. C. Taylor rendered the first toast on "Matrimony" from a parent's point of view. It was full of thought, wit and sentiment. He was followed by an able reading by Miss Mabel Taylor. Then came a toast from Rev. H. H. Kafer of Athens Grove, on "Matrimony from a Bachelor's point of view." His toast was very interesting, entertaining and of course very full of enlightenment. Then came a toast from Rev. C. S. Burnard of Footville on the subject "Matrimony from a Minister's Point of View." Many interesting incidents were told and the toast was very appropriate and pleasing. Then to close up with the toast mistress in a very able and unique way, introduced Rev. Charles W. Boag who gave a toast on the very "popular" and "pleasing" subject of "Woman." It sparkled with wit, eloquence and thought and in closing he said: "Oh that I could go through the choicest garden of the world and then could I ramble among the crowns of Kings and Queens and choose from each the brightest jewels. I would weave them into a wreath and place it as a crown upon the head of the Queen of our hearts, the Queen of our homes, the Queen of our Nations—a woman—the world's all-crowned Queen."

After this the dinner party broke up and the guests were entertained with music rendered in a most excellent way by the accomplished singer, Miss Elsie Taylor. At a late hour the guests departed to their homes glad to have been there to have witnessed that day "which time alone can not efface nor fortune shake." All join in wishing the young people God's best blessings.

PREFER SEPARATE STATE.

Indians Want Their Territory Admitted Independent of Oklahoma.

Advocates of separate statehood or the admission of Oklahoma and Indian territories into the Union as separate political divisions apparently have concentrated their efforts upon making a success of the constitutional convention to be called in Muskogee Aug. 21, says the Chicago Chronicle.

Separate statehood has lost the majority of its adherents since the unanimous action of the Oklahoma City convention and the aim of those who formerly favored it now seems to be to frame a constitution for Indian Territory and "let Oklahoma come in under it if she wants to."

Chief Porter of the Creeks, in speaking of the position of the Indians in statehood matters, said:

"We prefer a separate state from Oklahoma. I am satisfied that 90 per cent of the people of Indian Territory feel the same way. Whether we get separate statehood or not, this constitution will be a good thing. If we are forced to joint statehood with Oklahoma we will form a constitution and let Oklahoma come in under it."

Indian pride and a desire among the prominent members of the five civilized tribes to refute the belief that the Indians are in reality opposed to any sort of statehood are believed to be responsible for the great interest displayed in the coming constitutional convention.

The framing of a comprehensive constitution for presentation to congress by a gathering in which the Indians will take part, it is believed, will tend to change the opinion at Washington that the Indians are not yet ready for statehood and are not in a sufficiently civilized condition to be sent into the world without the shelter of the government wing. Chief Porter has voiced this sentiment, as have all the other chiefs of the Indian tribes.

BUMPS TO CHECK AUTOS.

Chicago Suburban Novel Scheme to Make Chauffeurs Obey the Law.

The problem of regulating the speed of automobiles has been solved by Glencoe, a suburb of Chicago. It is simple. Just make the fast going machines "bump the bumps," and there you are, says a Chicago dispatch.

Glencoe does not put it in any such crude way. It is simply going to "improve" Sheridan road, but this "improvement" is to consist of a six inch bump at every crossing, and the motorist who attempts to "take the jumps" at high speed will be punished, the Glencoe village board believes, more than by any fine which could be imposed.

Work on the bumps was begun a few days ago. They will be made of brick and will be six inches high at the highest point. On each side will be a sharp slope that will make it easy for the cars to get over, provided they are running at a moderate speed, but which will have a tendency to shoot the occupants some feet into the air if taken at high speed.

Neuralgia And Other Pain.

All pain in any disease is nerve pain, the result of a turbulent condition of the nerves. The stabbing, lacerating, darting, burning, agonizing pain that comes from the prominent nerve branches, or sensory nerves, is neuralgia, and is the "big brother" of all the other pains.

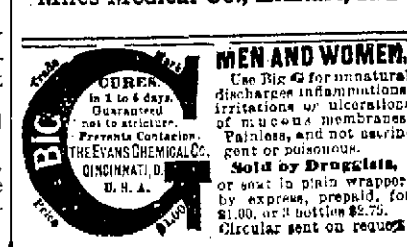

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills rarely ever fail to relieve these pains by soothing these larger nerves, and restoring their tranquility.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills leave no bad after-effects, and are a reliable remedy for every kind of pain, such as headache, backache, stomachache, sciatica, rheumatism and neuralgia.

They also relieve Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Car-Sickness, and Distress after eating.

"For many years I have been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and headache, and have never been able to obtain any relief from various headache powders and capsules, until I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They always cured my headache in five minutes time. FRED B. SWINGLEY, Cashier Nat. Bank, Atkinson, Neb.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit you. If it fails he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

"CUT IT OUT"

says the doctor to many of his lady patients, because he doesn't know of any medicinal treatment that will positively cure womb or ovarian troubles, except the surgeon's knife. GAVE UP SUPPORTER.

"I was a supporter for four years, to keep up my womb, which had crowded everything down before it. I wrote Mrs. S. J. Christian, of Janesville, Wis., 'My doctor told me no medicine would help me. I suffered most misery, and could hardly walk. After taking your Wine of Cardui, I was cured. Now I am taking my fifth bottle, have no pain, feel as fit as I ever did, and in my first half a day at a time, I strongly recommend Cardui to every suffering woman.'"

FIGHTER OF FEVER HAS BEEN STRICKEN

Dr. G. M. Barry Supposed To Be Immune, Is Laid Low at New Orleans.

[Special by Scripps-McRae.]
New Orleans, La., Aug. 12.—A report issued at one o'clock shows five deaths and thirty-seven new cases of yellow fever.

Immune is Afflicted.
New Orleans, La., Aug. 12.—A surgeon who was supposed to be an immune when he was brought here by the United States Marine Hospital service is critically ill with yellow fever at the Turo Infirmary. This is Dr. G. M. Barry, who has been working in the infected district ever since the fever broke out.

As every man is needed here at this crisis his loss is felt keenly by Dr. White. Dr. Barry is a Texan and worked with the corps in the Cuban campaign and in Vera Cruz. His illness simply proves the claim of the doctors that it is possible to have the disease more than once.

Alarm is Increasing.
Half of the new foci are located in the better part of the city, and as a result of this the alarm at the situation has increased.

Up to the present time no deaths have occurred among the residents of the upper part of the city above Canal street, although a number of the cases which have developed there have been very serious. A large number of the people of the upper part of the city are now away on their vacations and many of the big boarding houses are closed. This to a certain extent is preventing the spread of the disease in that part of the city.

One of the prominent characters down with the disease is Monsieur Begue, who, with his wife, has conducted Begue's restaurant here, which is famous across two continents.

Chapelle is Buried.

Archbishop Chapelle was buried more quickly than any other bishop ever has been. There was a short mass immediately after the church had been thoroughly fumigated, and all the people were required to leave the church as soon as the mass had been said. Then the priests carried the body to the crypt under the altar and placed it beside the other archbishops buried there for the past hundred years. The church then was again closed and fumigated.

Coffee and Tea in America.

The American, far more than many Europeans, seeks refreshment and renewed energy in the "cup which invigorates, but does not intoxicate." Coffee and tea are his favorite beverages. On an average he drinks more coffee than the native of any country of the Old World, and when classed with Europeans he is surpassed only by the English in his use of tea.

PACIFIC COAST HAS THE "MODEL MAYOR"

William H. Belcher of Paterson, N. J., Is Said to Have Been Seen in Stockton, Cal.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 12.—William H. Belcher, the "model mayor" of Jersey, who left the city with from $20,000 to $25,000 of other people's money, has been located in Stockton, Cal.

Prosecutor Emley of Passaic county will start the wheels of justice going, and a Paterson detective probably will go for Belcher. He is wanted here on charges of forgery and embezzlement. His peculations amount to nearly $150,000.

Information of the ex-mayor's whereabouts came in a postal card addressed to Harry Gold. The card was sent by V. C. Henry of Stockton, Cal. It was to the effect that Henry had seen Belcher and had talked with him. It also told of the plans that Belcher had formed. The postal authorities of Paterson would not divulge all that was written on the card.

Prosecutor Emley had been hurriedly summoned to the postoffice and the card was shown to him. Gold, to whom it was addressed, was requested to call at the office. The card was given to him, with the admonition that he should say nothing of the message until the prosecuting attorney's office could set its machinery in motion.

Gold afterward admitted receiving a card from Stockton, and virtually told just what was on it. Gold said he visited Stockton a few years ago and while there met Mr. Henry, with whom he afterward became on intimate terms. When Belcher suddenly left Paterson and it was reported he had gone to California, where he had relatives, Gold says he wrote Henry about it. Gold said that evidently Henry had been on the lookout for Belcher.

Costly Coat of Furs.

A coat of skins of reindeer fawns only a few days old is said to be worth thousands of dollars. The skins match perfectly in color and they are doubled so that the coat is the same inside as outside. This coat is as light as an ordinary raincoat, but warmer than heavy fur, and it is also waterproof.

Pedestrians at Fault.

At a recent dinner of the Society of Motor Manufacturers, the opinion was expressed by a speaker that pedestrians were the greatest sinners on the road. There is no doubt that they have a way of colliding with the cars, and not infrequently clogging the delicate machinery with pieces of themselves.

Meaning of Adieu.

The word "adieu" is purely French. In its original form it was "a Dieu," "to God," but in its full meaning expressing "I commend you to God."

FUND TO FEED TRAMPS.

Square Meal and a Hot Bath Free in Kalamazoo, Mich.

The will of Mrs. Almira Kramer of Kalamazoo, Mich., was read recently in the presence of the heirs, who were astonished by a trust fund of $10,000 to be used to feed tramps, says a Kalamazoo dispatch.

Senator Burrows, who is named as trustee, will have direct charge of the money. All applications must be made by tramps at the police department, where each tramp will be presented with a ticket entitling him to a square meal at a restaurant. If the tramp wishes he may have a hot bath.

Senator Burrows drew up the will for the woman, who was eighty-nine years of age when she died. The heirs will not contest, as the residue of the property amounts to $105,000.

The Growth of English.

The English language is growing. The Egypt correspondent of the Osage (Mo.) News writes: "Jeff Smith isn't exactly on the sick list, but he's pining some."

Why "Tawdry" Laces.

A curious bit of English history is preserved in the word "tawdry." It acquired its present meaning from the phrase "tawdry laces," a corruption of "St. Audrey laces," sold at St. Audrey's fair, which was the same as St. Ethelreda's fair. Ethelreda was queen of Northumberland and abess of Ely and died in the year 879.
